Giants Trim Cards, Hold Margin Of 41-2 Game

HUBBELL'S PITCHING GIVES NEW YORKERS 7-5 WIN; NEED 9 MORE

Brooklyn Sinks Cubs, Cincinnati Shuts Out Bees by 6-0 Score

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Out of three teams staggering along in an exciting rivalry for the National league pennant it begins to look as if the one that managed to stay the closest to a direct course will win the championship

Right now that means the Giants They took the lead at the end of a 15-game winning streak late last month and since then they have hardly managed to outdo the Cardinals and Cubs

Since the last victory of that string Aug 26 Bill Terry's men have played .500 ball for 20 games The Cards have lost 10 out of 18 while the Cubs have recorded only seven victories in 20 starts and are now hoping to protect a three game margin over the surging Pittsburgh Pirates

One Man Mound Staffs

Another remarkable similarity is seen in the one-man mound staffs of the Giants and Cards Of New York's 10 victories Carl Hubbell has accounted for five pitching four of the seven complete games turned in by Giant pitchers and topping it off with a brilliant victory in a relief role as the Giants whipped St Louis 7-5 in their final encounter yesterday

Dizzy Dean has been working just as hard though not quite so effectively for Manager Frankie Frisch He also has hurled four complete games winning two and has been on the mound the last three days in succession

Hubbell's elbowing yesterday enabled the Giants to stretch their margin to 4½ games They need only nine more victories in their remaining 13 games to win the flag

A six run outburst in the third during which they shelled Bill Walker and Jim Winford off the mound paved the way for the Giant victory But Gabbo Gabler and Dick Coffman had trouble protecting the lead and King Carl was called in He gave only one run a homer by Ed Heusser

Diz Is Hitless

Old Diz was summoned as the fifth St Louis flinger and pitched hitless ball for the last 2 1-3 innings

The Cubs dropped further into the ruck as Van Mungo hurling five-hit ball and Babe Phelps driving in both runs handed Brooklyn a 2-1 victory Pittsburgh climbed closer to third place with a double victory over the Phillies 11-4 and 6-5 Paul Waner got the clouting pace for the Pirates with five hits in the two games passing the 200 hit mark for the seventh season to equal the National league record made by Rogers Hornsby

Chicago's White Sox improved their position in the American league's three way second place battle by trouncing the Washington Senators twice 5 to 4 and 11 to 3 while Detroit moved into a tie with Washington by downing the Red Sox 1-0 in a mound duel between Tommy Bridges and Jack Wilson The Pale Hose went 10 innings to take the first game when Jackie Hayes doubled and Clint Brown singled him home Then they broke loose with 18 hits while Vernon Kennedy gave but five for his 21st victory of the year

The remaining major league game saw Paul Derringer of the Reds whitewash the Bees with five hits to win 6-0 Four American league clubs were idle

Von Bromberg Bested in Mat Contest With Terror

Born to a [illegible] [illegible] Count Von Bromberg [illegible] of meeting the toughest opponent [illegible] when he was brought and [illegible] in defeat by the Masked Terror [illegible] in last night's wrestling program In the other feature bout Buck Weaver the Hoosier grappler [illegible] to Otis Clingman of Amarillo Tex when the latter [illegible] a pile driver put Weaver out and ended the scrap with each contestant getting one fall Speedy Shaffer of East St Louis Ill and Jack Peden of Albuquerque battled through a fast 20-minute preliminary which opened the program at the Shrine gymnasium

Von Bromberg ran into trouble early in the initial round after irking the Terror by attempting to remove his mask The Count's whiskers proved a vulnerable spot as the Terror utilized them to anchor a head hold and execute a series of body slams The round went 20 minutes with the Terror driving Von Bromberg into the ropes for protection on numerous occasions The German was floored following a series of body slams and right crosses to the jaw during which time the Masked One kept a vise like grip on the Count's throat

The Count took the offensive at the start of the second fall but was handicapped by the Terror's use of the ropes for protection Twice the Terror edged through for seconds when his opponent's hold was apparently near deciding the round Von Bromberg was infuriated when his opponent took long rest counts outside the ropes and during a display of fury upon his return the Count gained a crab hold to take the fall at the end of 14 minutes

In the deciding round the Count opened by administering a series of body slams and working into a toe hold He handed the Terror three jabs to the face and several jabs to the chest as he backed the wiry opponent into the ropes The Masked grappler stood outside the strands resting stepping in only long enough to renew Referee Pop Browning's counting The German walked into a bad spot when he went through the ropes after the Terror Awaiting this move the Terror slammed his opponent into the laps of ringsiders and the Count was unable to return to the ring within the 20-second time limit

Buck Weaver's aggressive style of scrapping was matched by the cleverness of the hefty Texan Otis Clingman in the second featured bout The Hoosier took the initial hold an armlock on Clingman's left before the latter followed up with a tough chinlock Both combatants went to the floor as they wrestled through the ropes and Weaver returned first but failed in an attempt to place-kick Clingman to the mat as he returned to the ring Weaver evaded the Texan's try for a headlock and ended the first round at the 14 minute mark by taking the fall with a crab hold

Clingman's wing spread kept Weaver in hot water during the opening exchanges of the second round After spinning out Weaver handed Clingman three arm jerks and shoulder bumps before the Texan was able to counter Clingman applied a head hold and catapulted Weaver off the ropes He finished the fall by lifting the Hoosier shoulder high and dropping him head first onto the canvas The pile driver put Weaver out and he was unable to return for the third fall

COUNCIL VOTES MINOR CHANGES

Zone Transfers and Parking Restrictions Are Enacted at Meeting

City council last night made three minor changes in the city zoning ordinance and restricted parking of vehicles on sections of two streets.

A property located on the south side of East Church street and owned by Dr F F Mahla and a property at the southeast corner of Pennsylvania avenue and East Church street were transferred from the commercial to the residential zone. A vacant lot on the west side of Dix avenue at the Big Four railroad tracks owned by Truman Lewis of South Prospect street was transferred from the residential to the commercial zone. Mr Lewis said he has no plans for building on the lot in the immediate future.

Council by ordinance [illegible] parking on the east side of Delaware avenue for a distance of [illegible] feet beginning at the intersection of the avenue and Gurley avenue. Councilmen said the legislation is designed to eliminate a traffic hazard presented by the turn in the street. Council also passed legislation prohibiting parking on the west side of South Main street for a distance of 150 feet south of the intersection of Pellefontaine avenue. This zone is in front of the city schools administration building.

A request of Mrs Mildred Rink [illegible] Ulch that the street assessment for her property at the corner of Homer and Church streets be reduced was referred to the street and alley and franchise and ordinances committees.

Following a report by Councilman W M Fabian chairman of the police committee a recommendation that speeding on Bennett street be curbed was placed in the hands of Safety Director John V Ruth for immediate attention. Director Ruth said he would take the matter up with Police Chief William F Marks. Action on the protests of residents of the street was requested at a recent meeting by Councilman Hayden Rogers.

Council also made a supplemental appropriation of $807.10 to pay municipal court salaries. Council President R C Snare and Councilmen Shuster and Higgert were absent from the meeting.

3 HURT IN CRASH NEAR CARDINGTON

Driver Fails To See Bridge In Heavy Rain

Special to The Star

CARDINGTON Sept 15—Ellis Sisson and Woodrow Wilson of Marion and Mrs Fern Douglas of near here were badly cut about the head face and arms when the car in which they were riding crashed into a bridge at the edge of town Sunday night at 9.30. Due to heavy rain the driver of the car was unable to see the bridge.

The bridge railings were low and nearly covered with weeds. Mrs Douglas received face injuries while the boys were badly cut about the arms. They were taken to the office of Dr F C Sherman where they received treatment. Several stitches were necessary to close wounds.

The car was badly damaged and was taken to Marion. The two boys were employed at the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

STRIKES INCREASE ALL OVER FRANCE

By The Associated Press

INSURANCE MEN IN WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt Calls Them to Parley To Check on Their Financial Status

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Sept 15—President Roosevelt went into conference with nine insurance company executives today at the White House. At the same time one of his secretaries said that the President had no intention of seeking a federal department of insurance.

Explaining the purpose of the conference Secretary Stephen T Early said newspapermen [illegible] was to find out the present financial status of insurance companies as compared with 1930 when President Roosevelt as governor of New York started a series of [illegible] conferences which he has carried on since coming to Washington.

Early added the conference was to see what the federal government could do in the way of helping insurance companies further to improve their situation.

Later Charles F W [illegible] president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance Co [illegible] Cincinnati issued the following statement which he said had been approved by the entire group:

"We advised the President that between Jan 1 1933 and June 30 of this year the combined assets of all life insurance companies in this country increased more than $3 000 000 000. These assets now total approximately $23 915 000 000 against $20 900 000 000 at the beginning of 1933.

"In addition there are now 2 000 000 more policies in force than there were four years ago.

"There can be no doubt all the reports to the contrary notwithstanding that the American citizens who hold life insurance policies issued by insurance companies in the United States possess the safest of all possible securities."

Although Republicans linked the White House conference with a speech made Sept 5 in Allentown Pa by their vice presidential candidate Col Frank Knox, Stephen Early White House secretary said the conference memorandum was dictated Aug 28. Invitations to the meeting went out more recently.

Knox speaking at Helena Mont [illegible] repeated his Allentown charge that life insurance and savings accounts are endangered by the administration's fiscal policies and that the present spending policy will lead straight to inflation. He emphasized that his Allentown statement referred only to the value of money not to the solvency of any concern.

"It is not the insurance companies or the savings banks that are unsound" he said. "They are as safe as the rock of Gibraltar. It is the administration of the American government that is unsound."

"Because of a reduction in the dollar's purchasing power" he said "the value of every life insurance policy and every savings account has been reduced."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau asked yesterday about Knox's Allentown charge said:

"The time to worry about that (life insurance and savings) was three years ago. [illegible] to worry about now."

In administration [illegible] was said statements [illegible] from certain [illegible] telling policy holders [illegible] continued new deal [illegible] place the value [illegible] policies in jeopardy.

A A Ballantine [illegible] of the treasury in [illegible] administration said [illegible] issued by the Republican committee at Chicago [illegible] administration [illegible] was [illegible] a drain of votes against Roosevelt by alarmed insurance policy holders owners of savings bank deposits and [illegible] will see their dollars shrink unless there is a check on Roosevelt [illegible]

John D M Hamilton Republican committee chairman yesterday the President's conference was undoubtedly to offset the bad news they have tomorrow from Maine.

Rebels To Bolster Southern Army

(Copyright 1936 Associated Press)

MADRID Sept 15 The government high command announced today Gen Francisco Franco Fascist commander in chief has pledged 25 000 reinforcements to the Talavera march on Madrid after the Talavera chieftains had told him the militia is braver than we are

Authorities said their information came from a Fascist deserter who reported the main rebel forces were encamped west of Talavera De la Reina with two vanguards stretching toward A[illegible] and San Martin De Valdeiglesias the latter city only 35 miles west of Madrid

The Fascists are trying to establish a line linking Castile and Andalusia the deserter said with the Avila column under the command of Lieut Col Yague whose headquarters are back of Talavera

Aiming at Toledo

The government believed the immediate objective of the Fascists was to speed up their march on Toledo advancing by way of Talavera and Calzada Chozas crossing the Alberche and Tietar valleys

An official communique said Fascist fliers had bombarded Santa Olalla 24 miles northwest of Toledo and several other towns without obtaining their objective

The enemy also attempted to advance through the Boqueron mountain pass but an official report said a counter attack threw them back with three machine guns and 35 rifles captured by the government

Authorities declared the Fascists in Spanish Morocco had shot 200 persons in putting down an uprising there 17 days ago and that 23 more soldiers died before a firing squad in the zone last Saturday

The government itself it was announced has imposed the death penalty on 81 army officers since the start of the civil war nearly nine weeks ago executing 77 of them already

The agrarian reform institute it was announced has delivered 150 additional rural estates for direct exploitation by the families of land*less farmers*

In a series of sharp engagements government militiamen were said to have kept the Fascists from advancing on Madrid in the central area

In the north the Fascists drove toward Orio 10 miles west of the fallen city of San Sebastian in a general push on the seaport of Bilbao The United States consulate was abandoned at Bilbao and foreigners were hastily evacuating the city

CHILDREN GET AID AS CAMPAIGN NEARS

Marion Man and Department Do Their Bit Before Opening of Drive

Five children are in school today because a Marion man and a department store not waiting for the clothing and shoe fund drives Friday and Saturday made their contributions yesterday

A man who prefers that his identity remain unknown yesterday went into one of the leading shoe stores purchased four pairs of children's sturdy school shoes and took them to the Marion County Relief office The shoes were given to worthy children yesterday afternoon and today they are in school

A 10 year old girl was outfitted from head to foot from durable clothing to coat today by a Marion department store The manager called the county relief office yesterday and volunteered the contribution

If Marion as a community responds with proportionate generosity Friday and Saturday the schooling of nearly 1 000 boys and girls of the city will not remain in jeopardy Today they face months away from school because they have neither clothing nor shoes

Friday morning a citywide clothing collection drive will be made and all day Saturday a campaign will be waged to raise at least $2 000 for shoes The clothing will be remade at the WPA Sewing center and will be distributed as needed among the unfortunate children

Members of the gang had stolen cars in Columbus Portsmouth Jackson Chillicothe Dayton and Vandalia the officers reported

GOVERNMENT ABUSES HIT BY SPEAKERS

White whom he credited with intentions of keeping corruption and politics out of the department

The present administration threw out Hughes as liquor control director—now you have stories of permit holders paying into private pockets a sum of money in order to keep their permits stories of payments of $1 a case into private hands for liquor sold the state of Ohio

Understand I'm not talking about the state board of liquor control — it doesn't have much power

What I'm talking about is the situation that makes it necessary to go to the Deshler hotel and lay some money on the line before you can do any business with the state of Ohio

Raps Sales Tax Move

He also took the present administration to task about the state sales tax alleging the Davey proposal to exempt foods consumed off the premises was purely a political gesture and asserting that the governor opposed exemption of all foods because he had not cut state expenses to the point where such an exemption could be made Proper economy he said would have made the sales tax on foods unnecessary

Mr Herbert listed as one of the outstanding accomplishments of the state division of conservation under the direction of Gov Davey the stocking of a pool at the governor's mansion with goldfish Ohio sportsmen pay $500 000 annually into this department to stock fields with game and streams with fish but most of the money is spent for automobiles payrolls and propaganda Mr Herbert said

Of Mr Bricker's plans in the event of his election as governor Mr Herbert said Mr Bricker is opposed to levying any sales tax on foods

Mr Bricker is approaching all state problems from the standpoint of statesmanship instead of with the idea of building a political machine

He realizes the state highway department has become the pawn of politicians and he's working on a plan to take it entirely out of politics and use money collected from motorists exclusively for highways

He has a plan to take state wards out of politics

Mr Herbert asserted Mr Bricker has proven his character and ability as attorney general and said that straw polls throughout the state show he is in the lead in the gubernatorial campaign

Mr Herbert spoke briefly in behalf of each of the Republican nominees for other state offices asserting each is well qualified for the position he is seeking

In his brief comments on the national campaign Mr Herbert said in part People are beginning to learn the real stature of Landon They have been fed up [illegible] much on showmanship have had so many miracles performed and so many promises ignored that they are yearning again for old fashioned honesty in government Back of all government is the character and the manhood of the candidate

Mouser Speaks

Mr Mouser whose talk preceded that of Mr Herbert asserted the current national campaign raises the issue of meeting the nation's problems under changed conditions or following false guides to dictatorship

He spoke critically of the delegation of broad congressional powers to the executive branch of the federal government describing it as inimical to Americanism and the liberty justice and opportunity Americanism stands for

Landon he asserted knows from hard knocks and experience what the problems of the day are Fa[illegible] the [illegible] he said Landon stands for the constitution the ground work of the nation's governmental structure

The speakers were introduced by T A O'Leary president of the club The Young Republican glee club sang a group of songs at the opening of the meeting

It was decided to hold the [illegible] meeting of the club on Sept 28 and [illegible] a [illegible] speaker for the meeting of them on each side of the playing field Seven lamps each of 1 500 watt power will be erected atop 60 foot poles The group of 56 lamps will provide 15 foot candles of light on the playing field It was explained by G L Pierson of the C D & M Electric Co That amount of light he said would enable a person to do fine sewing or reading a newspaper at any point on the field The four poles on each side of the field will be placed 30 yards apart or on the five and 35 yard lines They will all be controlled by one master air brake switch

Members of the athletic committee pointed out that the Harding High football plant with its new concrete stadium under which is housed the dressing rooms and showers will be among the best in the state with the addition of lights The stadium was completed in 1935 as a WPA project and provides a permanent seating capacity of 2 20[illegible] Additional seats numbering 2 500 are provided on the east side of the field by temporary bleachers

The locker and shower rooms are now being constructed by WPA labor and are expected to be finished shortly At present it is necessary for players to don football togs at Harding High school and return there for showers following practice or a game With the new facilities the suits can be stored at the stadium and accommodations will be available for visiting teams

1937 SCHOOL BUDGET ADOPTED BY BOARD

two parts—$394 955 for the general fund to pay actual operating expenses and $130 726 25 for payment of principal and interest on bonds

The bulk of the $5 51 25 reduction is shown in the bond retirement and interest fund which is figured in the 1937 budget at $130 726 25 as against $135 327 50 for 1936 or a reduction of $4 601 25

Supt Hudson and board officials were emphatic in pointing out that the budget for 1937 represents the estimated expenditures for that period and that there is no way of determining until the end of 193[illegible] what the actual expenditures will be

The same holds true of the 1936 budget which also represents estimated expenditures Mr Hudson said The total cost of school operation in 1936 cannot be determined until after the end of December he explained

Slightly more than [illegible] per cent of the 1937 budget has been earmarked for personal services totaling $31[illegible] 550 or $4 700 less than the amount allotted for this purpose in the current year

Includes Salary Raise

Supt Hudson said the personal services item for 1936 included salary increases averaging 13 per cent which were granted teachers [illegible] current year and pointed out that the increases probably could be maintained during 1937 under the budget adopted last night The amount for personal services [illegible] expenses [illegible] of [illegible]

[illegible]

The board estimates that $442,726 25 of the 1937 budget will be raised from local taxation while receipts from the state school foundation program are estimated at $199 445 with income from other sources placed at $14 800 The last item includes tuition from outside districts text book sales and other miscellaneous receipts board members explained

Estimated receipts from local taxation for 1937 have been allotted as follows

General fund—$187 000 of which $90 000 is from levies outside the 10-mill limitation and $97 000 within the 10-mill limit bond retirement fund—$130 726 25 of which $102 788 75 is from levies outside the 10-mill limitation and $27 937 50 within the limitation

The bond fund provides $85 000 for payments of principal and $45 726 25 for interest payments

Below Legal Maximum

Mr Hudson called attention to the fact that the city schools are asking for 75 of a mill less for 1937 than is actually allowed them by law The schools are entitled to 3 25 mills within the 10-mill limita*tion plus a 3-mill levy* which was approved by voters last November for a five year period However the schools are asking only 2 5 mills within the limitation in addition to the levy he explained

The same situation held true in the budget for the current year Mr Hudson said since the schools asked for only 2 5 mills within the limitation for 1936 operation in addition to the 3 mill levy

New Teachers Named

In other transactions last night the board appointed Miss Jean Witt of 306 Hane avenue and Miss Sarah Conwell of Dayton to replace Miss Martha Mautz and Mrs Walter G Wheeler who have resigned Miss Mautz formerly in charge of music at the Glenwood school has gone to the Pleasant township school where she is in charge of music Mrs Wheeler formerly Miss Marie Hamner was a teacher at the North Main Street school and resigned because of her marriage

Contract for transporting pupils in the crippled children's school this year was awarded the Yellow Cab Co at its bid of 25 cents per pupil per day The only other bid was from the Safety Cab Co which bid 30 cents per pupil The rate of payment has been 25 cents a pupil

Rates of pay for substitute teachers came up for discussion with the board deciding to leave the rates unchanged Under the present rates substitute teachers receive $3 50 a day in elementary schools $4 25 in junior high and $5 in high schools

Textbook sales for the year ended June 30 totaled $4 8[illegible]1 01 Mr Hudson reported In addition to the books sold a total of $3 780 53 worth of books were distributed free to indigent children and for use as desk copies he said

"Time To Show Colors" Says Republican Newspaper

The following is quoted from a recent editorial appearing in the Republican Telegraph Forum Bucyrus Ohio

With the important November election but nine weeks away it is time that Grant I Mouser Jr of Marion Townsend candidate for Congress who is attempting to be elected on the Republican ticket show his true colors says this Republican newspaper

When Mr Mouser announced his candidacy several months ago he definitely announced as a Townsendite

He said that he did not know any other way out of the National Financial problem but through the Townsend Plan

Since then the Republican National Convention has been held and the Townsend Plan was not made a part of the Party Platform

It was not even mentioned It therefore was not recognized by the Party nor was it given recognition at the State Convention several weeks later

So far as the Republican Party is concerned and the same is true of the Democratic party the Townsend Plan has no place in the November election

The Platform of the Republican Party is a straightforward pronouncement for economy through reduced expenditures

This can not be done by introduction of the Townsend Plan of paying every one past sixty years of age two hundred dollars per month

"Scheme Would Cost Taxpayers Billions More In New Taxes

By no twist of the imagination or of figures can such a program be classed as one of economy the Bucyrus Republican paper states

So far there has been no public expression on the Townsend Plan from Mr Mouser's Democratic opponent Brooks Fletcher Incumbent Congressman from this district

His silence on this major question can be taken to mean his disapproval of the Plan

Silence however tells the voters nothing "The people of Crawford County and of other Counties of this District should be told within the near future where Mr Fletcher stands on this question

They should know before they vote whether the Congressman whom they elect is going to stand by the platform of his Party ***

Is the next Congressman going to vote to save the taxpayers or is he going to vote for a program that will bring economic and financial ruin if placed into operation*

"These questions must be answered

A public debate between Mr Mouser and Mr Fletcher would result in the answer

"Until Mr Mouser chooses between Republicans and the Townsendites, he is not entitled to the support of either

Says this influential Bucyrus Republican newspaper which is supporting Governor Landon for President

— Here Is —

Brooks Fletcher's Reply

Will Help Old People Get Justice

Several of my Crawford County friends have sent to me marked copies of your Bucyrus Telegraph Forum in which you challenge me to meet Grant I Mouser Jr in a joint discussion of the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan

In your editorial you urge that this joint discussion be held for the purpose of giving the people of the 8th Congressional District opportunity to learn what each candidate stands for and what each of us proposes to do in regard to Old Age Pensions if elected to Congress

Nobody Wants a Straddler

Because of the misunderstanding and confusion in the minds of most people regarding the Townsend Plan to provide a pension of two hundred dollars per month for life for those past sixty and because of the urgent need for adequate Old Age Pensions therefore any candidate for Congress who is honest and sincere should be grateful for the challenge you have issued to me

Excuse Maker Unworthy

"Any candidate who would offer excuses, or by evasion try to sidestep a straightforward suggestion such as presented in your editorial or any candidate afraid to come out in open discussion with his rival on the Old Age Pension issue or any other issue, would be entirely unworthy of the confidence of the people and altogether unworthy of the support of the voters It would be useless to elect such a man to any public office

Brooks Fletcher

Voted Against Spending Fifty Thousand Dollars

"At the last session of Congress I voted against spending fifty thousand dollars to finance the Congressional Investigation of the Townsend Old Age Pension proposition, because I did not consider it to be either economy or common sense to spend such an amount of money for that purpose.

"Realizing that the Old Age Pension law which we have already passed is not adequate, I introduced an amendment to provide financial security more nearly adequate for those past sixty and I shall reintroduce another amendment at the next session of Congress

What Amount Is Adequate.

"In the meantime, I shall be grateful to the people of the District, if they will please write to me at my home in Marion, Ohio, and tell me what amount of money per month they consider to be an adequate Old Age Pension.

Paid Advertising.

Why Old Age Pensions Necessary.

Labor saving machines the middle age deadline employment policy of refusing to give jobs to men and women past forty and the rapidly changing economic conditions of today make Old Age Pensions an absolute necessity as every informed fair minded person well knows

Favors Friendly Discussion

As a matter of justice and common honesty we should study every phase of the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan and all other Plans and do it in the spirit of kindness and sympathy and with an open unprejudiced mind

Gladly Accepts Challenge

It is in this kindly friendly spirit that I gladly accept your challenge to meet Mr Mouser in a joint discussion of the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan in any place in the 8th Congressional District at any time that may suit his convenience

Will Help Finance Meeting

"If necessary, I shall be glad to cancel any of my speaking engagements to accommodate those who are interested in the proposed joint discussion and, in addition, I shall be pleased to contribute my share of whatever money is required to finance the expenses of the meeting

"Like all other people, who have given the subject any thought or study, I am for the most just, adequate, Old Age Pension that can be properly financed.

"I accept your challenge to engage in joint discussion with Mr. Mouser in the humble attitude of one who is anxious to learn what is best about any plan that will do justice to the men and women who are growing old and who are financially insecure through no fault of their own"

The above statements are quoted from the reply Brooks Fletcher sent to the Bucyrus Republican Telegraph-Forum in response to that newspaper's editorial challenge to meet his opponent in joint discussion at a public meeting on the subject of The Townsend Old Age Pension Plan.

What Do You Suggest?

It has been suggested that public meetings for the proposed joint discussion be held in the county seats of each of the six counties in the 8th Congressional District. What do you suggest?

You are invited to address your suggestions to E C Wrede, Box 2[illegible], Marion, Ohio.

(Signed) E. C. Wrede.

Mr Moloney declared [illegible] as a [illegible] of the method used in questioning prospective members of the jury he [illegible] was enabled to [illegible] the use of additional preemptory challenge In answering the argument Prosecutor Michel said the defense had an opportunity to object to the entire jury but did not do so

Mr Moloney told the court that Braden was found guilty of the crime because Watkins previously had been convicted Testimony of witnesses at his trial he said shows that Braden was asleep in his room at the time of the shooting And all of Cyre Bennett's actions from the time of his finding the body of his brother to his attempt to send the revolver to Delaware with a relative and the fact that he did not attend his brother's funeral are stamped with guilt

In presenting the state's case at the close of Attorney Moloney's argument Prosecutor Michel went into the admissibility of the Cyre Bennett testimony He cited statutory and judicial authority holding that an insane person can be permitted to testify in a criminal case if after an examination they indicate they know right from wrong know the meaning of an oath and can tell a coherent story He declared the testimony of Dr Bush ong superintendent of the Lima hospital and an examination of Bennett by Judge H S Young the trial judge satisfied Judge Young that Bennett qualified as a witness in these three particulars

"Bad Boys" Behave.

By now every school boy is supposed to know that business men, particularly investment brokers, according to the conception of the present administration, are a bad lot. If it weren't for the rod that government wields, all merchants would be making at least 700 per cent profit on their goods and security dealers would be selling worthless stocks printed on cigaret paper.

Since the security men have been built up as a particularly "vicious" group, it will come as a surprise to all schoolboys and most adults to learn that these outcasts are starting to "reform." More than 600 security dealers are meeting in Chicago to consider plans for operation of a nationwide self governing organization. Initial object of the conference is to provide by voluntary action a medium through which members may consult and cooperate with governmental and other agencies in solution of problems affecting their business and the public. Later, codes of fair practice and self discipline may be adopted. Meanwhile, similar conferences are scheduled for most major cities in the country.

As every schoolboy is supposed to know, according to Washington beliefs, this self discipline business is plain hooey. It is impossible for a group of "bad boys" to get together and agree to play the game squarely. Only by the rod of government and the night stick of policemen can virtue be thumped into the heads of princes of privileges. It just isn't possible that business men and security dealers are as honest as the rest of us, with only an average number of black sheep!

At His Best.

Two things about President Roosevelt's political ability never have been questioned. They are his genius for friendliness and his extraordinary flair for public speaking.

Memory produces no instance in which the President appeared at his best more clearly than during his Friday speech at Charlotte, N. C. He was among friends, in a region whose doors always are open to Democratic presidents. Mr. Roosevelt's speech was entirely in harmony with the warm overtones of friendliness surrounding him.

It is a rude shock to remember in the middle of its beautifully conceived thoughts and warm assurances of well being that "green pastures" and "still waters" are not the issues of the presidential campaign. Those issues deal with ugly, hard subjects—the soundness of money, the trend toward collectivism, unemployment, the bloated expenditures of the federal government and the threat of a blind class struggle in the United States.

Admittedly, it is more pleasant to hear about "green pastures" and "still waters" than to try to analyze such knotty problems as how to get control of runaway expenditures. By the same token, it is more pleasant to talk about such things. When, if ever, will President Roosevelt undertake to discuss the issues of the campaign?

Hot Where It's Cold.

Most of us know Alaska is a territory of the United States almost twice as large in area as the state of Texas. Most of us, too, think of it as a land of eternal snow where salmon fishing and mining are the principal activities. Perhaps we were a bit surprised last June to realize Alaskans send delegations to the major party conventions although they do not vote for President in November. Maybe we were even startled to learn there is a "hot" political fight going on in the frozen north—which isn't so cold now, for there's little snow up there at this time.

Alaskan politicians are winding up their campaign in preparation for the voting which will take place this month so that returns from distant precincts can be tabulated in time for reconvening of congress next January. Chief office being contended for is that of delegate to congress, now held by a Democrat facing stiff opposition from his Republican opponent.

Mules, boats, automobiles, trains and planes all have been used by candidates to carry their message to the people of the Arctic circle, including the Eskimos who welcome visiting politicians to their villages. The United States waits breathlessly for the result of the major fight. What will the Alaskans say, indirectly, of the new deal spending policy? What will they say about Republican promises to restore the American way of living?

Probably nothing. Major point for debate is the proposed abolition of fish traps, favored by the present delegate to congress. Perhaps the Alaskans have hit upon the real issue.

Is Government Different?

A [illegible] by the name of John Q. Citizen [illegible] that in the 12 months ending July [illegible] had an income of $4,[illegible]. Then [illegible] the following facts.

John Q. Citizen spent [illegible] that year [illegible] $1,7[illegible]. He already was in debt about $[illegible] now he owes a total of $4,[illegible].

His [illegible] ever received [illegible] standard [illegible] to be rapid[illegible] that [illegible] getting [illegible].

Y[illegible] neighbors [illegible] were settled [illegible] $2 [illegible]. He was getting [illegible] in his payments wh[illegible] run.

[illegible] added to his income [illegible] $2,000 until it now stands [illegible] of $4,[illegible] [illegible] than that, due to [illegible] able to show [illegible] how to keep away from [illegible], the grafters and his [illegible] of spendthrifts.

[illegible] probably, if there really were [illegible] the name of John Q. Citizen and he [illegible] debt $4,[illegible] or an income of $1,[illegible] with the debt still growing and his income at its maximum level, his friends probably would cluck their tongues in commiseration over the plight of old J. Q.

That seems to be the proper way of greeting the news that John Q. Citizen really is Uncle Sam, with six less ciphers on his financial status than that wealthy, but debt-ridden and spendthrift-stickened, old gentleman.

It may be partisan propaganda to talk about the national debt—the new deal defenders and the Roosevelt nominators say it is—but $31,000,000,000 is a lot of digits to ignore.

This Means You.

If you play bridge, you must know about the IBL—International Bridge league.

It is the congress and supreme court of bridge players in half a hundred nations of the world. It determines who shall be the aristocracy and who shall be untouchables of the game.

If and when it decides to change the rules, there will be no argument. You will have to learn new rules and like them. Furthermore, you will not be consulted, nor will you be given a chance to vote.

You are, to put it bluntly, regimented. You've no more independence than a businessman under NRA. In other words, as long as you're willing to be a minion of the IBL, everything will be lovely. After that—Pouf! and you can make up your own rules, to break or to keep, whichever you prefer.

We'll Be Lucky—

Give heed to that unhappy man, the football coach.

He has the best squad that scholarships and persuasion can assemble. If he happens to have one of the big coaching jobs he is more important at this season of the year than the president of the university.

He has high hopes of an undefeated season, which probably would mean an increase in salary or at least an extension of his contract. In the offing are prospects of fame which might make him one of the really successful experts in a field with great commercial possibilities.

Moreover, there would be no end of personal satisfaction in turning out one of the best teams in the country and being invited to engage in one of those exciting intersectional contests.

So what does the coach do? He pulls a long face, weighs the pros and cons and announces to a skeptical public that "we'll be lucky if we win a game." Furthermore, he means it. Not only that, but he is right, as will be plain the latter part of next November when all the upsets have been recorded, all the injuries to star ball carriers have happened and all the unlucky coaches have been put on the skids.

Is This Final?

The President has told the people of Maine that something might yet be done for Passamaquoddy tidal bay project, that "neglected" orphan of the last congress. The country hopes that nothing will be done, for when the apparent absurdity of the project finally was impressed upon congress and the appropriation faucets shut, Democrats joined Republicans in the general thanksgiving.

Now comes the news that weeds will not be allowed to grow over the Quoddy buildings and equipment. An official announcement says that as a result of the "suspension" of construction activities on the project the war department would make available to the national youth administration all housing facilities, shops and equipment. Apparently, the buildings and what goes with them will be used by NYA in conducting a training school as part of its youth program.

It is not clear what the youngsters are going to be trained to do. They might learn how to play football, how to become carpenters, machinists or plumbers or even delve into the profundities of accounting. No matter what they do, probably they'll get more use out of the buildings than could have been electrified out of them by the tidal-lunar project.

But is this disposition of Quoddy final? What did that sinister word "suspension" mean? Alas, time and the politicians will tell.

Vermont Staunchly Republican

Sentiment Against New Deal Policies Indicates Larger G. O. P. Majority Than in 1932.

Today's dispatch deals with Vermont, the fourteenth state out of the 16 states being visited by David Lawrence in his nationwide survey of the trends of political sentiment.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 15.—The age-old rock-ribbed state of Vermont remains as staunchly Republican as it was four years ago when, notwithstanding the landslide for Mr. Roosevelt, the Green mountain state gave Mr. Hoover a 22,000 majority.

I was particularly interested here to inquire not so much about the electoral vote, for that seems assured, but the tide of the vote. Is Governor Landon as strong or stronger than Mr. Hoover was four years ago? This was the question I asked well informed persons.

The consensus seemed to be, not only here but in other parts of the state visited, that Governor Landon is strong enough to increase the Hoover majority of 1932 from 22,000 to about 35,000 as a minimum and that it might go much higher. In the heyday of Republican tides, the 1928 election, Mr. Hoover carried the state by about [illegible],000 so it may be judged how strongly a 35,000 victory for Governor Landon would indicate a return of those Republicans who strayed in 1932.

Reasons for the rise of the Republican tide have more to do with dissatisfaction over new deal policies than with Governor Landon's pronouncements, though, to be sure, Vermont, which was the native state of Calvin Coolidge, is bound to admire the same qualities in Governor Landon—the "Kansas Coolidge"—as were exhibited by the man who with similar lack of drama or emotional effort presided over the destinies of the United States from 1923 to 1928, admittedly the most prosperous era in American history.

• • •

There is in Governor Landon's appeal to New England, as exemplified by his speech at Portland, Maine, last Saturday night, something of the same simplicity which characterized Calvin Coolidge's public addresses. It is best classified as quiet dignity—a lack of dependence on oratorical or elocutionary effects but a reliance on common sense and fundamental Americanism.

Mr. Coolidge would have been a poor radio speaker had the radio been in such widespread use when he was a candidate for the presidency in 1924 as it is today. Mr. Coolidge, moreover, would have declined to try to change his personality to fit the campaign.

So Governor Landon, by insistence on retaining his own character or role, so to speak, and refusing to try to imitate some other personality on the air, is winning votes in New England where they understand both forthrightness and common sense.

It is natural to find, however, here that the anti-new deal sentiment is much stronger even than the pro-Landon feeling. That's because of the enormous government spending program, so little of which has touched Vermont. This is one of the states which is among those that received the least from the federal government but is going to pay among the top group of states. For Vermont, by thrift and enterprise, has invested her savings and pays large federal taxes.

• • •

Vermont is today enjoying a relative degree of economic prosperity. There is a feeling here that things would be better but for the Canadian reciprocity treaty and the AAA program. The former has opened up competition in dairy products, for which this state is famous, and the latter has served to increase the prices of grains needed for feed.

The Democrats have not yet begun to put on a campaign of organization, though the Republicans have been intensifying their organization work here for more than a year. Perhaps the new deal is ready to concede Vermont anyhow.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1926.

Rev. I. Frederic Jones resigned as rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church to accept the pastorate of St. Philips' church in Cleveland.

Edward Durfee, 90 years old Tuesday, continued active as secretary of the Marion Building, Savings & Loan Co.

O. H. Boyd of Marion was elected president of the Ohio Music Merchants' association.

Morris Sager of Olney avenue went to Cleveland to resume his studies in the Cleveland Institute of Music.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, Sept. 15, 1916.

The British again broke through the German front on the Somme at a point regarded as one of the strongest in the Teutons' line. A thousand yards of trenches southeast of Thiepval were captured.

Contract for additions to the plant of the Osgood company was awarded the Bellefontaine Bridge & Iron Co.

Howard Mitchell was elected president of the Young People's Branch of the Marion County W. C. T. U. at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Addison Bain.

Superintendent Henry A. Hartman of the Marion schools was instructed at a conference with City Solicitor F. L. Carhart to notify all non-resident pupils of the city to pay tuition charges or cease attending classes. It was stated that $480 was due the city from rural students.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15—Never before have national political organizations gone in behind a state election with strategy and money to the extent they did in Maine.

Published expenditures represented only a part of the money sent into the state by both sides. Most of it will be totaled later by senatorial campaign investigators, but some of it may be hard to find. At any rate, both sides spent as much as they thought they could: both schemed and ran the state campaigns to an extent never attempted before.

The air of nonchalance assumed around Democratic headquarters covered ceaseless energetic activities in which even government bureaus were pressed into last-minute service for the cause. (Chairman Farley was supposed to have had some trouble cooperating with his unfriendly senatorial candidate, but this was more apparent than real.) Actually, both sides shot the works in the Pine Tree State.

Potatoes

To give you an idea of how well Mr. Farley worked.

The state department here is not supposed to play politics, at least not on a ward basis. It deals with international affairs, which are supposed to be conducted on a somewhat higher plane than even state elections. Also, high-minded State Secretary Hull has never been particularly clubby with the Farleyites.

However, on Saturday, two days before the Maine election, the state department stage-whispered to the press that it had sold Argentina 20,000 barrels of Maine potatoes. They were to be used as a seed crop for Argentine potato growers who have suffered a severe drouth.

While Mr. Hull is not supposed to be running a grocery store, in this instance he appeared as salesman to the Argentine agents who came here to study different types of potatoes, letting the news slip out just prior to the voting.

What he did not let slip, unofficially or otherwise, is that the Argentines are also buying Canadian potatoes in like amount.

Premature Plan

If you could administer some truth serum to the right persons, you could find out that President Roosevelt plans a long December sea voyage, win, lose or draw.

Naval admirals in the crow's nest are supposed long to have had orders for preparations, in which that sabotaged cruiser, Indianapolis, played a part. Deck swabbers have heard the Indianapolis was to accompany Mr. Roosevelt, probably on a visit to South America to open the big Pan-American conference. He was to ride another cruiser, but the Indianapolis was to go along.

The suggestion will undoubtedly be denied now, and it may not develop. It would be extremely difficult for him to get away for such a long trip, unless he wins, and, even so, he can not plan definitely this far ahead. However, keep the idea in your date book for post-election remembrance.

Sabotage

The navy is passing around the intimation that "Reds" were responsible for the Indianapolis sabotage, merely to cover up a very thorough inside investigation.

Few investigating authorities believe they have a political agitator to deal with. Their hopes of catching any one at all are not very high, but the composite mental picture they have of the maniac is that of a pyro rather than a Russo.

The possibility that it may be a seaman is not impressive. The electric power cable aboard the Indianapolis was punched with phonograph needles and nails while civilian workmen were overhauling the ship. The disastrous fire aboard the Colorado in Panama in 1930 occurred from the same cause after the ship had been overhauled at the same navy yard in New York.

Notes

Lofty state departmentalists, who are not supposed to know an election is coming on, have also been issuing long lists of data purporting to show that farmers and agricultural areas were the principal beneficiaries of the reciprocal trade treaties. Recently they worked up a complete series of announcements, showing, state by state, how the agricultural products of each state had benefited from these treaties. No politics, of course.

Top naval authorities do not believe Communism has made any serious inroads among the enlisted personnel.

The new deal lowdown on the Michigan primary was that Senator Couzens could not pull through and knew it when he issued his statement supporting Mr. Roosevelt.

The entry of Frank Murphy into the Democratic gubernatorial situation in Michigan was promoted at least partly by a man who wanted his job as Philippine high commissioner. The promoter did not get it, but may if Murphy wins.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Gene Buck, although only in middle years, is more than any other figure along the thoroughfare, Broadway's Last Guardsman. A valiant, lone defender of lost traditions on the street that once whipped the universe but is now only sparkless ashes of a glory that was.

Buck, one of the shrewdest showmen and organizers on the Rialto, is more than all else the super-sentimentalist who has never been chilled by the marbly hearted world in which he cast his lot. He refuses to believe Broadway is no longer Broadway.

He came to the street from Detroit hugging his dream. Beginning as a song cover artist, he suddenly entered a world of darkness, stone blind! His vision returned miraculously one night in the Broadway blaze. And that bright picture is one for him that never fades.

Every noon Gene is at his table at the Lambs—a table once graced by Victor Herbert, Wilton Lackaye, and so many others now gone, to whom Gene was the fair-haired boy, gushing his later-realized ambitions. The scene and actors change. Buck does not. He still holds aloft the Broadway torch.

• • •

I wonder if others who make eating out a prowling sort of adventure are swayed by the lure of restaurant names. Last evening on a side street off upper Broadway we saw a modest sign "Home Dainties." It was a tea-room, chintzy sort, splendidly named for there was delectable home cooking served in dainty portions. And by pleasant waitresses, watched over by a steel-spectacled, bosomy duenna, who took pride in their jobs. One longed for a porch hammock and the twang of guitars afterward.

• • •

And every one living or visiting in New York should have a sun down shine on a Madison Square bench now and then. It is the Shoe Shine Capital of the world, there being more shiners there than in any other given area. Many races are represented even to the Hindu-looking fellow with a turban. There is a one-legged shiner and one with but a single arm. All, too, show a pride in their calling.

Some painted their boxes bright colors, others bossing them with brass tacks, and one idealist who tucks a fresh flower behind his ear. Most customers are established residents from boarding and rooming houses fringing the square. They are the pipe smokers who come with knitting wives and pet dogs to make the evening shine a rite—like squirrel feeders in Central Park and rented chair sitters in the Bois.

• • •

Why columnists wind up with the jitters: "I am coming to New York for my first visit. Have only four days and don't want to miss anything. I'm a stranger to you but have read you for years and would like at least two afternoons and two evenings so you can show me personally the many things you have written about. P. S. So there will be no misunderstanding, all expenses Dutch."

• • •

Whatever the fate of Jimmy Johnston, the fight matchmaker at the Garden, he has been the most colorful figure in fistics since Tex Rickard. For 10 years they have been trying to shear Jimmy of authority. But Jimmy, a wiry Irishman, always bobs up again, 'top side galent' with cigar at a perky angle and hat at a cocky tilt. He thrives on fighting, literally. If there isn't a scrap he will stir up one. Scrapping is not only his trade but his diversion. And as an exhibit in explosive temperament he is far more interesting than many fights he stages.

An Iowa Vie of "Farm Aid

Writer Analyzes Oper Processes of the AAA

Editorial "Helping the Fa from the Boone, Ia., News-Re lican.

"Do you want to go ba cent corn?"

That is the poser wa the main argument of deal in the farming are

Of course, nobody wan back to 8 cent corn, n any danger of it. Fur there is no new deal argu the fact of 8 cent corn reason that statistics show average price of corn for new deal years ending 1935, was 67¼ cents per while the average price f years preceding the new 76 cents per bushel. The ap proximate percentages about wheat and other gr stock, and other produ the farmer puts into ket.

Possibly Mr. Wallace tak for the present dollar corn. Mr. Wallace is a claimer. Yet any farme the AAA is dead and present skyrocketing pr grain are due to the Alm the drouth, not to the We congratulate the he's got any to sell.

Unfortunately the all-wi deal agricultural adm has fixed it so he hasn't it called in all sealed corn demanding immediate paym refusing any extension of The farmer had to sell the price down as l cents in some Iowa count which resulted in a dire the farmer-producer. The came along and forced the corn as high as $1.10. The lator, not the farmer, go benefit.

• • •

A more pertinent questi Do you want to go back AAA? Who got the gravy that creature of the brain Well, Senator Vandenberg of igan pried out informatio a reluctant secretary of agri that, out of the $1,171 handed out, more than 1,00 ficiaries received over $10 ginning at the top of the Hawaiian Commercial Sug drew $1,022,037, and so on through the sugar companies York banks, New York life ance companies, state tentiaries, British owned pi land companies, cotton realty operators—all dippin the public treasury for $50, to nearly a million for no something. That looks very d to the dirt farmer who got a of $25 or more. Indeed, it ficult to figure out whe farmer comes in in this roy erosity of a Washington bu racy to corporations and ban mention of which was ma the preamble to the AAA malefactors of great wealth to have got the best of it.

Compare this generous ment of the sugar com banks, and other corporation what happened to the w Maine. She had butchered tw for the use of the family on federal snoopers called told them that she had rai hogs and was using them fo in her home. They went t a long rigmarole of figurin finally soaked her for $18 p which she paid out of her means.

Yes, this can happen here, a law like the AAA.

• • •

On the other hand, the f of Iowa was not relieved competition by the sacrifice the AAA. Down in Texas, the government shut off cotton, they immediately put idle land into corn producti raised hogs nullifying Iowa forts at reduction.

Nor is Texas and the sou only competition which the dle west farmer was p against. It is a peculiar fa when the south gets in the free trade becomes the sh This is well illustrated in which Secretary of State H Tennessee Democrat, has p effect in the last year. Un AAA and the Canadian the United States has be importing country with rega all farm products. On the hand it has lost its expor of cotton, corn, wheat and va other commodities.

On Oct. 6, 1932, Mr. R said, "I know of no high duties on farm pro do not intend that such lowered." Mr. Hull of Te changed the President's a result we have had a ports from foreign farmer 391,099,397, under the "planned economy."

Abraham Lincoln said

If we buy a ton of steel England for $90, America steel rails but England $90. But if we buy the ste in the U. S. we have the ste and the $90, too.

We wonder if the ch certain farmers receive government compensat loss of markets which suffered. The producer ning to realize that in run he is simply recei which he has either alre in or will have to pay bac sound business man knows that the treasury cannot keep of checks indefinitely.

We cannot take the fa task for accepting these You would do it, and I it. If Uncle Sam is fool throw money out, there be no particular moral not grabbing it.

The only question the now asking himself is will it last? The answer at least until election.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

CHAPTER ONE

Death on the High Road

TERENCE MAHONY was bored. The company of his friend Billy Ross bored him. It had bored him for the last seven days. [illegible] Mahony. It had never occurred to him that some day Billy Ross would bore him.

The two young men had been friends for 10 years. A certain carefree lawlessness common to both of them had drawn them together while they were still at school and the friendship had continued after they left school. [illegible] occasion, at a considerable personal risk, [illegible] saved Mahony's life. The matter was never [illegible] between them but Mahony remembered.

Now Ross was boring him. He felt rather [illegible] about it. Still, there was [illegible]. Oh well.

Mahony's philos[illegible] no dead time [illegible] and change had [illegible] work in their [illegible] was painter dur[illegible] last four years [illegible] the rest. But [illegible]

[illegible]ned from a four [illegible] in China a week be[illegible] had b[illegible] in London [illegible] that w[illegible] found Ross nervous [illegible] table—quite un[illegible] [illegible] Ross remembered.

[illegible] two of them had [illegible] drinks at a wayside [illegible] their way down to the [illegible] Captain Ross, R. N. [illegible] who was giving a [illegible] party. Two other[s from] London whom Mahony had met were also com[ing] for the party. Elsa [illegible], a young film actress, and [illegible] Lawson, a business [illegible] of Billy. They were to [spend the n]ight at Captain Ross's [and] return to London the [illegible]

[As th]ey sipped their cocktails [at the] bar counter Terence Mahony wondered for the hundredth time at the change that had come over Billy. At times [his] mouth twitched oddly and a pale unhealthy look [illegible] could not keep his hands [illegible]. Behind the bar the platinum blonde barmaid was reading [an] evening paper.

"[illegible] other young society girl [missing] from home," she observed with some relish. "I wonder [what has] happened to her."

[illegible] made a sudden irritable [illegible] and knocked over his [illegible]. The liquid ran over the [coun]ter. "Hell!" he said in [an ill-t]empered voice, the voice [of a m]an whose nerves are very [much] on edge. The barmaid [look]ed up from her paper at [Maho]ny and made a surprised [grimace] as if to say "There's a [nas]ty temper for you."

"I'm sick of this place," went Ross roughly. "Let's get out [of i]t."

"As you like," agreed Mahony good temperedly. For himself [he] could see nothing wrong with [the] place, but if that was the [way] Billy felt about it . . .

[They] left the inn and went out [to] Billy's car. Though it was early in the evening, dark had already fallen. About [on]e mile separated them [from] Captain Ross's house in [illegible]shire. Billy stepped into [the] driving seat, Mahony got in [beside hi]m and they started.

* * *

[It w]as a bleak, cold evening. [Th]ere was little traffic on [the] road. About two miles out [of] Pagburn, where they had [stopp]ed for their drink, they [heard] the booming roar of a [powerfu]l engine behind them. The glare of strong head[lights] shone past them, lighting [up th]e hedges at the sides of [the r]oad.

[illegible] turned and looked back [over hi]s shoulder. In the glare [of th]e following headlights his [face l]ooked more [t]han ever [illegible] and pale.

"[We're] being followed," he said. "[I kn]ow whose car that is." [Th]ere was a harsh jerkiness [in hi]s voice; he spoke in the [tone of] a man suddenly awak[ened t]o a deadly peril. Mahony [didn't] know what to say. He said nothing and his friend's [illegible]

"Is there a [illegible] that [illegible]" he asked [illegible]. "Why should he follow us if he [illegible]?"

Ross [laug]hed a short laugh that had a distinct note of [hys]teria in it.

"What harm?" he said in a high pitched voice. "What harm? Perhaps you'll find out."

That was all he said. His foot [came] down hard on the accelerator and the car shot forward at [an] increased speed. The needle of the speedometer moved from forty to forty-five, forty-five to fifty-five, more slowly—to sixty, and there remained quivering slightly. But the booming roar behind sounded more loudly, the glare of the pursuing headlights increased in intensity.

Mahony glanced back over his shoulder. Now the pursuing car was only a few yards behind, its headlight throwing a dazzling blaze of light in Mahony's eyes. As he looked, screwing up his eyes trying to see better, there came from behind that brilliant glare a sharp explosion and a sudden distinct spit of red flame. Something went "whit" over the top of the car.

"What the blazing hell!" exclaimed Mahony in a tone of scandalized astonishment. "The swine's shooting at us with a pistol."

Ross did not answer; he did not seem to hear; all his attention was concentrated grimly on driving. From behind came the sound of more shooting, sharp and vicious, crack, crack, crack, like a big whiplash snapping in the air.

Without warning the car lurched wildly, straightened out for a moment, lurched dizzily again, skidded with a wild scream of tires broadside on for a few yards, hit the low grass bank at the side of the road and then overturned with a tremendous crash.

Mahony, with a sensation of utter helplessness, felt himself shot bodily from the car and flying through the air. Instinctively he raised his arms to shield his face. With the echoes of the crash ringing in his ears he landed in a soft hedge, smashed through it, breaking small twigs and branches, and landed with a bump in soft grass on the other side of the hedge.

Shaken and scratched but comparatively unhurt, he scrambled to his feet. The sound of the pursuer's car was fading into the distance, the wide swathe of light from his headlamp was getting farther and farther away. Ross's wrecked car, its headlights out and its four wheels sticking ridiculously up into the air, was lying half in the grass and half in the ditch. No sound except a soft hissing came from it.

* * *

"Billy!" shouted Mahony anxiously. "Billy!"

There was no answer. Mahony forced his way through the hedge and made for the wrecked car. He had a horrible fear that Billy was pinned beneath it.

"Billy!" he called again and bent down by the car with the idea of feeling beneath it to find out if Billy was there.

The sound of a low groan a short distance behind him caught his attention and he turned sharply. The sound had come from the dark bottom of the ditch and he made his way to the place.

Ross was lying there doubled up in an unnatural attitude. His breath was coming in short, panting gasps. Obviously the first thing to do was to move him from the ditch bottom and get him straightened out. Mahony bent over him and lifted him. A moan of shuddering moan came from Ross's lips.

"[illegible]," said Mahony.

He laid Ross gently down in [the gr]ass at the side of the road. [illegible] be [illegible] in the darkness [illegible] he could just see his face, deathly white except for the red smears across it. As he looked Ross opened his eyes. A slight [illegible] his pale lips.

Billy Ross was still unconscious

"Hallo, Terence," he murmured. "[illegible] as they [illegible] go so [illegible]."

"Lie still," said Mahony. "I'll get some help and we'll soon have you fixed up quite comfortably."

Ross shook his head.

"They've done all the fixing anyone will ever do for me," he whispered. "But I don't care. I'm better out of it."

"Boloney," said Mahony, assuming a cheerfulness he did not feel. "I'll make you as comfortable as I can and fetch an ambulance and the police."

"No."

There was a strenuous urgency in Ross's voice. His face had gone a curious grey colour. Little beads of perspiration were standing out on his brow and upper lip. With one hand he plucked feebly at Mahony's sleeve.

"No," he gasped painfully. "You're not to tell the police. That bullet only hit the tire. Let them think it was an accidental burst. If the police make enquiries things may come out about me that will make it dreadful for my parents. Don't argue, just listen. Listen. Listen. Listen. I tell you. Listen."

"All right," said Mahony. "I'm listening."

Ross continued. His voice was a mere feeble whisper.

"Those men in that car are crooks. So am I. I was one of them. Dope and kidnaping are their games. They kidnap people and then dope them. After they've got the loot they let them go. Then they sell them the stuff."

For a moment he paused, gathering his fading strength.

"They wanted me to help kidnap Elsa. At the Cinema Ball. I wouldn't. I couldn't let them do that to Elsa."

* *

CHAPTER TWO

Fancy Dress

"THE man behind the whole thing is Ambrose Lawson," he said in a strong, clear voice.

Ross's grip on Mahony's sleeve relaxed. He gave a faint sigh and lay still.

Far away in the distance a glow in the sky announced the approach of another car. Mahony rose to his feet. His obvious next move was to stop the approaching car. And then what?

If Ross were not dead already he would probably die from his injuries. Mahony hoped that he was already dead. A man who had been a member of a dope peddling and kidnapping outfit was better dead. He had no doubt whatever about that.

Yes, that was quite clear as far as it went. But it did not go far enough. Standing there waiting, Mahony thought of another Ross, Billy Ross as he had been four years ago, reckless, unstable but generous and good natured to a fault. The Billy Ross who had saved his life.

He knew perfectly well what he was going to do. He wasn't going to the police. If he went to the police with his story about Ross and Lawson they would certainly believe the story about Ross but it was not so certain that they would believe the part about Lawson, or even if they did believe it they might not be able to get proof of Lawson's complicity in the dope trade.

Ross had wanted things hushed up for the sake of his parents and Mahony proposed to see that his wish was carried out. As for Lawson and his associates, he would deal with them himself. It would give him something to occupy his mind before he went abroad again.

As the approaching car came near he stepped out into the roadway and held up his hand. At the scene of the crash the car stopped. A couple of men jumping out and came running to [him], said.

"What's happened?" asked one of them excitedly. "Good heavens, what a frightful crash. Is anyone hurt?"

"Yes. I think my friend has been killed," answered Mahony quietly. "We burst a back tire and the car overturned."

He paused.

"There was another car just behind us, but it didn't even stop," he added.

The three of them got [illegible]. Ross was lifted into the newcomers' car and taken to a hospital. Mahony telephoned to Captain Ross, telling him of his son's accident and had a long interview with the police. The story that he told them was simply that a back tire burst at speed and the car overturned. After that he returned to the hospital to await Captain Ross.

At a late hour that night Billy Ross was unconscious but still alive. There was the faintest chance that he might survive. But they held out no hopes whatever of anything like a complete recovery. Whatever happened, Billy Ross would be a helpless cripple for the rest of his life.

* * *

Terence Mahony was not a man who would strike the casual observer as being remarkable to look at. His age was twenty-six. He was [illegible] strongly built, stocky, [illegible] feet [illegible] in height, weighed about 175 pounds and was [inclin]ed to be careless [illegible].

He carried himself with a slight slouch that made him look shorter than he really was. His eyes were grey and very calm and unworried [illegible] though [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] his [illegible] to save.

His manners were quiet and self-[illegible] almost [illegible] when he was [illegible] The [illegible] people with whom he came into contact. He was an excellent natural athlete and had represented his school at football and boxing and his county at lawn tennis but he was incapable of taking any game really seriously.

From his father, an Irishman who had been Professor of English Literature at a minor English university, he had inherited a love of reading. Sometimes for [illegible] he remained [illegible] at other times [illegible] he [illegible] the most fantastic nonsense.

If he made up his mind to do anything he [did not] waste time talking about it. He simply set about [doing] it. He liked to take his own pains and [illegible] and the [opinions] of other people did not worry him.

* * *

The day after the smash he returned to London, took a couple of furnished rooms for himself and removed all his things from Ross's flat. He also took the opportunity of going through Ross's possessions in the hope of finding something which would [throw light] on his criminal activities. But he found nothing. One possession only of Ross's he took away with him: a fancy costume which Ross had intended to wear at the Cinema Ball.

That costume had arrived the previous morning and Mahony had examined it with some curiosity. It was a long, brightly colored garment with a colored headdress and was obviously meant to disguise its wearer as an Arab sheik. But Mahony noticed both robe and headdress were lined with black and were safe [illegible] they [illegible]

A rather fictitious [illegible] of affairs is read from the ruling positions of the planets. While business may move in rather routine grooves, yet it may be confronted by perplexity or confusion, and it will be [wise] to be alert to intrigue or to shun bickerings and quarrels. A contract or agreement may be beneficial. Social, domestic or affectional affairs may be pleasurable and prove profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather routine year. It would be wise to shun disputes and quarrels and give attention to a contract or legal agreement which may be advantageous.

A child born on this day may have a very sensitive and retiring nature but may provoke criticism and enmity. He is apt to be cultured, refined and studious.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Yellow Fever

Finding the way to prevent yellow fever is one of the outstanding triumphs of sanitation and preventive medicine. Few realize the amount of research work that was required to subdue this disease, once regarded as the greatest scourge of mankind.

Although the disease has not been completely eradicated from the globe, it is rarely if ever encountered in this part of the world.

It now is confined to Africa and other tropical countries where large areas [illegible] and continue to [be] uncultivated and wild. Under the guidance of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation sufficient data was accumulated to suppress the disease in the western hemisphere.

But the menace of yellow fever never must be overlooked. With improved methods of transportation, especially the great development of air travel, it is always possible for this disease to be carried to neighboring countries. To guard against this danger many countries require all planes to undergo a process of fumigation immediately upon landing. In this way the disease bearing insects are destroyed.

A germ carried by a mosquito called the stegomyia fasciata is responsible for yellow fever. The victim of this disease shows a peculiar yellowish discoloration of the skin. He has a high fever, is restless and constantly sick at the stomach. There is steady vomiting of foods and fluids. This is called the "black vomit." The disease is indeed a terrible affliction.

Yellow fever can be brought to this country only by the transportation of the mosquito to our shores. As I have said, this pest lives in remote sections of the world and it is hoped that ultimately even there it will be destroyed.

There must be an increasing campaign against yellow fever as well as other insect-carried diseases. To most of us who live in this part of the world the disease is rarely ever heard of and is never met by the practising physician. Yet scientists are well aware of the fact that it must not be considered as an extinct disease.

It is distressing to find a let-down in the old time precautions against disease. Eternal vigilance is required or we may find ourselves in the middle of an epidemic which ought never to have occurred. Watchfulness should be the rule of every generation.

You Can't Beat GAS Heat for This Kind of Weather

Cool Nights

Fall presents a difficult heating problem — yes, difficult unless you have automatic gas heat. Likely you will need no heat in the daytime. At night you want just enough warmth to balance the frosty temperatures outside. Gas heat is the ideal fuel for between seasons as well as the coldest days of winter.

Your family is deserving of the advantages of clean, carefree gas heat of even temperature. A heating survey of your home will convince you that modern gas heat costs no more than old-fashioned methods, all incidental expenses considered. Phone The Gas Company or mail the coupon for this free heating survey.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Finds It Necessary to Use Her Pistol

KATIE'S [illegible] found [illegible] with [illegible] he sprang back [illegible] Katie's clutch so eff[illegible] took [illegible] off guard [illegible] was able to get [illegible] balance and [illegible] over [illegible] of the [illegible] before [illegible] what had struck [illegible]

He was a small man but power ful [illegible] would never have been able to [illegible] alone But [illegible] and I made a flying da[illegible] at the same moment and Lillian with an expert quick twist of [illegible] sent the knife flying [illegible] the floor of the veranda

Give me what you have [illegible] your hand Madge Lillian whispered abruptly and taking an extra grip of the man's hair with one hand I handed her the [illegible] pistol and then helped Katie again pinion the arm which my momentarily relaxed grasp had enabled him to jerk loose

There was a [illegible] hardly discernible as the [illegible] but [illegible] found [illegible] the man's body stiffened while he muttered a malevolent curse under his breath

Warns Prisoner

That was [illegible] the [illegible] Lillian said coolly I do not wish to kill you—I'd rather save you for the—guillotine

I thought I knew the reason for her hesitation and for her substitution of the foreign word for those more familiar to American ears The hangman or the chair

But she went on I shan't hesitate to use either this little fellow or this larger one from which you jerked away just now Both are covering you Will you stop trying to get away or must I shoot to kill?

I—stop The words came sullenly but his struggling ceased

Don't try any tricks Lillian warned him If you move I shoot Keep hold of him Katie Madge take your knife cut the ropes of the veranda shades and bring them here

I hastened to obey and as I did her bidding trying to be as quiet as possible I strained my eyes over the balcony railing wondering whether the silent watcher below had heard us

Quiet Capture

But no sign came from him and I remembered that Katie's movements though swift had been noiseless that Lillian's voice had been but a murmur as had that of the malevolent intruder and that the only real betraying sound the tinkle of the knife as it fell on the floor had probably been unheeded by the guard whose whole attention was focused upon his task of signaling to our men inside the kitchen the first sound of the approaching car bearing my uncle to the farmhouse

It must be two or three minutes past the zero hour Harry Underwood had named I reflected My father's brother was evidently not the man on the second as Harry Underwood had described my father more than once Or else - something unforeseen had happened

I brought myself up with a round turn as my knife severed the last strands of the ropes I had worked mechanically and my conjectures had not delayed my [illegible] I must [illegible] [illegible] now I [illegible] myself [illegible] Lillian's side [illegible] the [illegible] in my hand

Madge Ties Him

[illegible] and [illegible] she said and make a [illegible] of [illegible] go of him [illegible] I [illegible] Sorry I can't [illegible] but I can let go [illegible] here

I w[illegible] and efficiently for [illegible] one of my few [illegible] accomplishments When [illegible] and [illegible] were [illegible] bound I told Lillian so in [illegible]

[illegible] replied in the same [illegible] murmur she had employed before Katie you may let go of [illegible] and help Mrs Graham [illegible] this job up right I want [illegible] to the ba[illegible] railing [illegible] the [illegible] way from [illegible] above the kitchen door The [illegible] so securely that he can't [illegible] and blindfold him securely When you've finished I'll [illegible] a gag in his mouth

[illegible] had not finished speaking when from up the wood road past the barn there came the faint but unmistakable throb of a motor And at almost the same instant we heard the guard below draw a stick with a rattling noise across the kitchen window

MISS RAND SHOCKED

Right Thumb Burned in Contacting Switch

By The Associated Press

FT WORTH, Tex, Sept 15—Disregarding a severe electric shock that burned her right thumb, Sally Rand went on with her dance at the frontier celebration last night. Damp from walking through a late afternoon shower, she was shocked when she touched a light switch in her office. The current knocked her down.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

(Copyright 1936 by Marian Sims)

CHAPTER FORTY FIVE

Yes She Said

CAROL was silent for so long that Blake's control forsook him again. He gripped her shoulders and made her look at him.

Carol, I never thought you'd be a coward.

She broke down then and cried and he forgot his scruples and pulled her to him and held her as tight as he dared.

She drew away at last and looked at him. The reason I can't, Blake—not now—is because the thing was so perfect I didn't know people could feel that way. If I hadn't loved you as much as I did this wouldn't seem so hopeless. We wouldn't have had so much to lose.

Carol you love me, don't you?

Yes I always will.

Then listen. I'm not going to crowd you against your will. I'm going to be here day in and day out waiting and hoping for you to stretch out your hand. We couldn't marry or even be together for a while but knowing you were ready and willing would make life another thing. If I could feel that you were near me and that you loved me and were going to belong to me I could even be happy waiting. He took her hands and held them tight. Will you make me a promise?

If I can.

You can. Promise me that the day you feel differently you'll tell me so. Will you promise that?

Yes.

He leaned over and kissed her hands one at a time and then looked long and straight into her eyes.

My own darling.

He got up quickly. He would have prolonged the talk if he had dared but there were limits to his self-control. He left her without another word.

She sat motionless with his words throbbing in her ears. Finally Cornelia came in and smashed the moment deliberately with a heavy hand.

I hope you told him everything would be all right, she said bluntly.

No, I couldn't do it.

Cornelia made a quick incredulous sound and stood and stared at her.

You damned sentimental fool, she said brutally. It would serve you right if you lost him.

January. Happy New Year, Miss Torrance. The same to you, Mrs. Mar[illegible]. We're having a [illegible] Tuesday afternoon, Carol. I hope you can come. Happy New Year, Carol. Thanks, Freddie, the same to you. [illegible]

[illegible] Annabel go married, Miss Torrance. And next year and the year after, what?

February. [illegible]

[illegible] there were fewer references to Eve regarding the work. She found assignments and [illegible] on her desk when she arrived in the morning and she left copy on his desk when he was out for lunch. When he [illegible] to a member of the force she never dared to raise her eyes.

Apparently [illegible] uncertain [illegible] days. [illegible] confided [illegible] finally was taking it hard and that he ought to get away for a couple of weeks. Mr. Martin had remarked [illegible] that he was apt to tell anything in his unfavorable condition. [illegible] and felt an intolerable [illegible] in her heart.

March. Winter turned and plodded back northward and spring was once more a whisper from afar, sensed rather than heard. She was the last to leave one Saturday and she went to the window and stood looking at buildings tinted with a thin gold wash of sunlight.

The wind was [illegible] and the air that brushed her face seemed to come from another place and another season. Strange that a breeze through an office window could be laden with the odor of lilies in the rain.

She turned away from the window and went to get her hat and coat. Blake's door was open and she saw him sitting motionless, staring at his desk. Without knowing what she did she turned and walked into his office.

He got awkwardly to his feet like a puppet and stood and looked at her. She heard herself saying harshly,

It's late. Why haven't you been to lunch?

The words astonished them both and he smiled slightly.

I was waiting for you to leave. I haven't left here before you half a dozen times since—in over two months.

She knew that it was no use. No matter what happened she could never get away from him, he was the other half of her self. She closed the door and stood with one hand behind her clinging to the knob.

I don't know why you're this way, she said. It's no use. I'm not worth it. I'm afraid. Maybe I'll always be afraid. But I'm more afraid of living without you than I am of anything that could happen with you. Do you want me—even that way?

He said, I want you—any way. I lied when I told you I didn't. He said almost angrily, Come here.

She came, astonished into obedience. He put his hands on her shoulders and gripped her so tightly that she winced.

But you've got to help, he said bluntly. I won't have you be a coward. You've got to turn your back on what happened and hold your head up. Will you?

With his hands on her shoulders and his face close to hers it seemed easier. Alone in her apartment the dread would come back, but then—when the time came—she wouldn't be alone. She would have to remember that. And if you could not recapture ecstasy you could at least hope that the gods had had their revenge, that henceforth they might leave you in peace.

Yes, she said.
